GEORGE WYATT ELMS, and TRAVIS
KLYN,

Appellants,

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Appellee.

Case No. 3:20-cv-00253-MMD-CLB (Appeal from Case No. 3:20-mj-00036-CLB)

ORDER

I. SUMMARY

This is an appeal from Magistrate Judge Carla L. Baldwin's order in U.S. v. Elms, Case No. 3:20-mj-00036-CLB, ECF No. 24 (D. Nev. Filed April 1, 2020) ("Underlying Case") granting the government's motion to continue Appellants George Wyatt Elms and Travis Klyn's¹ preliminary hearings and extending the deadline by which their indictments must issue (the "Order").² (ECF No. 1.) Because the Court is persuaded by Appellants' argument that Judge Baldwin clearly erred in the Order—and as further explained below—the Court will vacate the Order and remand this case to Judge Baldwin with instructions to immediately release Elms and Klyn under 18 U.S.C. § 3060(d).

¹Klyn filed a motion to join Elms' appeal. (ECF No. 2.) The government does not oppose Klyn's joinder to the appeal. (ECF No. 5 at 2.) Because Klyn is materially identically situated to Elms, the Court grants his motion to join Elms' appeal, and refers to both of them collectively as Defendants throughout this order.

²The government filed a response (ECF No. 5), and Elms filed a reply (ECF No. 6).

II. BACKGROUND

The Court issues this order during the pandemic caused by the novel coronavirus known as COVID-19. In the ordinary sense of the word, this is an extraordinary time. But the primary question before the Court here is whether there are extraordinary circumstances specific to this case justifying continuance of Elms and Klyn's preliminary hearings, and whether those circumstances outweigh the interest of justice in not holding people in jail before the government has shown it has probable cause they committed a crime.

Like many courts across the country, the Court has restricted its operations in response to COVID-19, and currently relies on video and teleconferencing technology to conduct the limited hearings that are still occurring during this period of restricted operations. As pertinent to this appeal, the Court promulgated Temporary General Order 2020-05³ ("TGO 2020-05") on March 30, 2020 to implement certain provisions of the "Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act" ("CARES Act") authorizing the use of video and telephone conferencing, under certain circumstances and with the consent of the defendant, for various criminal hearings during the course of the COVID-19 emergency. See CARES Act, H.R. 748, Public Law No. 116-136.

The Underlying Case began two days after the Court issued TGO 2020-05 when the government filed a criminal complaint against Elms and Klyn—for breaking into a hardware store in Winnemucca, Nevada and stealing some 25 firearms. See Underlying Case, ECF No. 1 (filed April 1, 2020). Elms and Klyn both had their initial appearances by videoconference. See id., ECF Nos. 4, 5. They also consented to have their preliminary hearings by videoconference. See id., ECF Nos. 22 at 3-4, 23. Nevertheless, in the Order, ³Available at <https://www.nvd.uscourts.gov/wp-content/uploads/2020/03/GO-2020-05-re-COVID-19-Remote-Hearings.pdf>.

1 Judge Baldwin decided to continue their preliminary hearings instead of holding them by 2 videoconference. (See Order.)

3 The Court incorporates Judge Baldwin's description of the procedural history of 4 the Underlying Case from the Order, and does not fully recite it here. See Order at 1-3.
5 In short, the government requested that Elms and Klyn's preliminary hearings be 6 continued, and its deadline for filing indictments against them be extended. See 7 Underlying Case, ECF No. 19. Elms and Klyn did not consent to having their preliminary 8 hearings continued (but, again, consented to having them by videoconference), so to 9 grant the government its requested continuance, Judge Baldwin was required to find 10 under the governing legal framework—and did find—"that extraordinary circumstances 11 exist and justice requires the delay[.]" (See Order at 3-7.) Judge Baldwin went on to find 12 that the Speedy Trial Act's "ends of justice" standard was also satisfied, for essentially 13 the same reasons she found that "extraordinary circumstances" existed, and also 14 because it is unlikely a functioning grand jury will exist in this district for some time, and 15 thus also extended the government's deadline to file indictments against Elms and Klyn.
16 (See id. at 7-9.) This appeal of the Order followed.

17 III. DISCUSSION

18 Defendants argue Judge Baldwin's Order is clearly erroneous,⁴ so the Court 19 should vacate it, and remand this case with instructions to release them. (ECF Nos. 1, 6.)
20 The government of course responds that Judge Baldwin's Order should be affirmed. (ECF 21 No. 5.) The Court agrees with Defendants.

22 The Court finds that, as Defendants argue (ECF No. 1 at 4-12), Judge Baldwin's 23 factual findings in the Order are clearly erroneous, leading to the legal error of finding

26 ⁴"A district judge may reconsider any pretrial matter referred to a magistrate judge 27 in a civil or criminal case under LR IB 1-3, when it has been shown the magistrate judge's 28 order is clearly erroneous or contrary to law." LR IB 3-1(a).

1 extraordinary circumstances exist in this case when she decided to grant the 2 government's requested continuance of Defendants' preliminary hearings over their 3 objections. At a high level, the issue with the Order is that it treats hypothetical arguments 4 from the government as facts specific to this case, and fills in gaps in the government's 5 minimal factual showing in its underlying motion with speculative factual assumptions that 6 may not be true. The Court also finds that Judge Baldwin erred in not making any findings 7 to support her conclusion that justice required delaying Defendants' preliminary hearings.
8 (Id. at 12-13; see also Order at 3-7.) Moreover, Judge Baldwin erred in extending the 9 government's deadline to file an indictment under the Speedy Trial Act, because her 10 decision was based on the same clearly erroneous factual findings that led to her 11 incorrectly continuing Defendants' preliminary hearings. (See Order at 8 ("The Speedy 12 Trial Act's "ends of justice" standard is easily applied here because it is far less 13 demanding than the "extraordinary circumstances" standard set forth in in Fed. R. Crim.
14 P. 5.1(d), which the court has already found to exist.") (citation omitted).)

15 The Court begins its review with Judge Baldwin's factual findings. She first found 16 the government "will have difficulty preparing for the preliminary hearing given the 17 inherent limitations presented by teleworking and the availability to review documents and 18 evidence." (Order at 6.) But as Defendants argue, this reason does not speak to the 19 prosecutors and law enforcement agents involved in this case, nor does it identify any 20 documents or evidence the government needed to review, nor does it explain why the 21 government needed to review them. (ECF No. 1 at 6-11.) Moreover, the government did 22 not point to anything specific to this case in its underlying motion that supports this finding.
23 See Underlying Case, ECF No. 19 at 6-7. The government should have offered something 24 about the specific people and documents involved in the underlying case, why they were 25 unavailable, or what information they were looking for they lacked access to because of 26 teleworking or conditions created by COVID-19. This factual finding is therefore clearly 27 erroneous because it is untethered to factual circumstances specific to this case.

1 Moreover, this finding is problematic because both the governing statute and rule impose 2 a burden on the government⁵ to make “a showing that” extraordinary circumstances exist, 3 and justice requires the delay. See 18 U.S.C. § 3060(c); see also Fed. R. Crim. P. 5.1(d); 4 see also U.S. v. Fortenberry, Case No. 2:14-MJ-673-VCF, 2014 WL 6969615, at *2 (D.
5 Nev. Dec. 8, 2014) (“This, however, was the government’s burden.”). The general 6 statements the government offered untethered to the facts of this case—and upon which 7 Judge Baldwin relied—do not constitute such a showing.

8 Judge Baldwin next found that necessary documents or witnesses may be in 9 Winnemucca, Nevada, because that is where the alleged offense conduct occurred. See 10 Order at 7. This factual finding is erroneous for several reasons. First, the government 11 did not make this argument. See Underlying Case, ECF No. 19. Thus, in line with the 12 discussion above, making a factual finding based on a showing the government did not 13 offer ignores the government’s burden in seeking a continuance of a preliminary hearing 14 over the defendant’s objection. Second, Judge Baldwin appears to have drawn this 15 inference based on the content of the Complaint. (See Order at 7 (citing Underlying Case, 16 ECF No. 1).) However, Defendants argue that much of the evidence, and many of the 17 witnesses in this case—most notably the case agent—are located in Reno, Nevada. (ECF 18 No. 1 at 10 n.23.) Judge Baldwin’s inference may therefore be incorrect. That highlights 19 why a factual finding based on speculation is clearly erroneous. Third, to the extent Judge 20 Baldwin drew this inference from the affidavit attached to the Complaint, the case agent 21 states in that affidavit that he is assigned to the Reno field office, the alleged criminal 22 incident was captured on video, Elms was arrested in Reno, made several phone calls of 23 interest from the Washoe County Detention Center, also in Reno, and the case agent

24
25 ⁵The statute and rule are written to impose this burden on the moving party in the 26 event the defendant does not consent, so, as here, the government is the only party upon 27 whom this burden could be imposed. See 18 U.S.C. § 3060(c); see also Fed. R. Crim. P.
28 5.1(d).

1 found Elms' car in Reno. See Underlying Case, ECF No. 1 at 5-16. Thus, even the 2 affidavit attached to the Complaint pointed to at least some evidence and witnesses being 3 in Reno rather than Winnemucca. Her factual finding that necessary witnesses and 4 evidence may be in Winnemucca was clearly erroneous.

5 Judge Baldwin finally found that it was "unknown whether" some witnesses would 6 be able to join a videoconference hearing, either because they lacked access to the 7 technology or because they would need to travel to prepare for their appearance at a 8 videoconference hearing. (See Order at 7.) This finding suffers from two of the flaws 9 identified above as to Judge Baldwin's two other factual findings: (1) the government did 10 not argue it; and (2) it is hypothetical and not tied to any facts or evidence in this case.
11 Thus, this finding is also clearly erroneous. In sum, all three factual findings Judge 12 Baldwin made to support her finding of "extraordinary circumstances" necessary to 13 continue Defendants' preliminary hearings were clearly erroneous. The Court must 14 therefore vacate her legal conclusion based on these erroneous factual findings.

15 Judge Baldwin only made one additional factual finding to support her 16 determination to extend the deadline for the government to file an indictment—that there 17 had not been a functioning grand jury since mid-March and there likely would not be one 18 for some time. (See Order at 7-9.) The Court agrees with that finding, as far as it goes.
19 However, there was no functioning grand jury at the time the government filed the 20 Complaint, and there could have been no reasonable expectation that one would exist 30 21 days from that date given the Court's reduced operations due to COVID-19. Moreover, 22 TGO 2020-05 was promulgated before this case began. Thus, as Defendants argue, the 23 government should have known it would have to proceed via a preliminary hearing 24 conducted over videoconference, rather than by obtaining an indictment, at the time it 25 filed this case. (ECF No. 1 at 12-14.)

26 And as Defendants also argue, the issue of Judge Baldwin's reliance on the 27 unavailability of a grand jury is intertwined with the legal error she committed in failing to

1 make any factual findings to support her conclusion that justice favored delaying 2 Defendants' preliminary hearings. (ECF No. 1 at 12-14; see also Order at 7.) The basic 3 point is that the government knew or should have known it would have to proceed with a 4 preliminary hearing by videoconference within 14 days from the commencement of this 5 case, but nonetheless moved to continue the preliminary hearings two days before those 6 hearings had to occur. See Underlying Case, ECF Nos. 1, 19 (filed on April 1 and April 7 14, both after TGO 2020-05 had issued); see also U.S. v. Summerfield, Case. No. 2:20-8 cv-00713-APG-BNW, ECF No. 4 at 1 (D. Nev. Apr. 21, 2020) (explaining that the 9 government knew it would have to proceed with a preliminary hearing when it initiated the 10 case, likely by video or teleconference, and therefore "the witnesses and evidence should 11 be available and ready to present in court."). And the government did not provide any 12 reasons for its delay in preparing for the preliminary hearings in its underlying motion 13 beyond the general statements of abstract difficulty discussed above. See Underlying 14 Case, ECF No. 19.

15 The Court can therefore only infer a lack of diligence on the government's part 16 weighing against a finding that justice favored delaying the preliminary hearings. See 17 Fortenberry, 2014 WL 6969615, at *2 ("Rule 5.1 does not permit continuance solely to 18 enable the government to avoid a preliminary hearing by securing an indictment[.]") 19 (citation and internal punctuation omitted). But Judge Baldwin reached the opposite 20 conclusion. (See Order at 7.) In addition, she did not make any factual findings that appear 21 specific to her conclusion that "justice requires the delay." See id. Based on the language 22 of 18 U.S.C. § 3060(c) and Fed. R. Crim. P. 5.1(d), the government should have provided 23 specific reasons why justice required the delay in its motion, and Judge Baldwin should 24 have made specific findings if she found those reasons persuasive. That is in part 25 because—as Defendant argue—preliminary hearings exist to prevent indefinite detention 26 of pretrial detainees. (ECF No. 6 at 2-3.)

1 Finally, the Court is persuaded by Defendants' argument that the caselaw Judge
2 Baldwin relied on in her Order is distinguishable.⁶ (ECF No. 1 at 5 n.13; see also Order 3 at 4.) To start, the court in U.S. v. Munoz, Case No. 20MJ1138-MDD, 2020 WL 1433400, 4 at *1 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 24, 2020) was operating under a temporary general order that 5 suspended "all proceedings under Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 5.1[.]" and made 6 no reference to an order like TGO 2020-05, which permits preliminary hearings via 7 videoconference with the defendant's consent. See TGO 2020-05. The same goes for 8 U.S. v. Xalteno-Alejo, Case No. 3:20-MJ-00822-MSB, 2020 WL 1433416, at *1 (S.D. Cal.
9 Mar. 20, 2020). (See also Order at 4 (relying on this case).) Similarly, the court in U.S. v.
10 Carrillo-Villa, Case No. 20 MAG. 3073, 2020 WL 1644773, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 2, 2020)
11 does not appear to have been operating under an order like TGO 2020-05 that permits 12 preliminary hearings to occur by videoconference. Moreover, in Carrillo-Villa, the 13 government appears to have made a much more specific showing of the impediments to 14 holding a preliminary hearing than the government did here. See id. Thus, the Court also 15 finds Carrillo-Villa distinguishable. (See also Order at 4 (relying on this case).)

16 The government's arguments in response to Defendants' appeal fail to persuade.
17 (ECF No. 5.) To start, the government attempts to buttress Judge Baldwin's Order with 18 reasons for continuances that it did not present to Judge Baldwin. (Compare id. at 7-8 19 (stating that ATF policy prohibits its agents from using the videoconferencing service 20 Zoom), 8-9 (arguing that it is difficult to conduct hearings by videoconference because of 21

23 ⁶For the same reasons described herein, the Court is unpersuaded by the 24 government's reliance on the same set of cases. (ECF No. 5 at 6-7.) The Court also notes 25 the government relies on these cases as examples "regarding the pandemic in general[.]" 26 which is a good illustration of how the government's arguments in this appeal miss the 27 point. (Id. at 6.) One of the primary issues with the government's motion in the Underlying 28 Case was that it was too generalized and not tied to the facts of this case, but the government continues to make such generalized arguments on appeal. The Court finds these generalized arguments unpersuasive.

1 technical issues), 11 (noting the government plans to have a detective from Winnemucca 2 available for any preliminary hearing) with Underlying Case, ECF No. 19 (declining to 3 mention any of this).) These arguments involving new reasons for the government's 4 requested continuances are inappropriate because the government did not raise them in 5 the Underlying Case. See United States v. Howell, 231 F.3d 615, 621 (9th Cir. 2000) 6 (holding in the related context of review of a magistrate judge's recommendation on a 7 dispositive issue that "a district court has discretion, but is not required, to consider 8 evidence presented for the first time in a party's objection to a magistrate judge's 9 recommendation"); see also In re Mortg. Elec. Registration Sys., Inc., 754 F.3d 772, 780 10 (9th Cir. 2014) (noting in the related context of appellate review that "[g]enerally, 11 arguments not raised in the district court will not be considered for the first time on 12 appeal."). If the government had these reasons for seeking a continuance all along, it 13 should have put them in its motion directed to Judge Baldwin.

14 But the Court will nonetheless address some of the government's unpersuasive 15 arguments in its response, beginning with the government's new arguments about its 16 potential witnesses. (ECF No. 5.) If ATF policy prohibits the case agent from using Zoom, 17 the government could arrange for the case agent to use a device at the U.S. Attorney's 18 office in Reno with appropriate social distancing because the case agent is also located 19 in Reno.⁷ (Id. at 7-8; see also Underlying Case, ECF No. 1 at 5 (stating he is based in 20 Reno).) And as the government is now arguing it is unsure whether the detective in 21 Winnemucca can use Zoom, that highlights the government's lack of diligence, as it has 22 been about a month since the government initiated this case, and answering that question 23 would not take more than a phone call. (ECF No. 5 at 8.) Moreover, as described above,

24
25 ⁷Defendants also point out in their reply that it would be reasonable to assume the 26 ATF agent would have access to a non-agency digital device. (ECF No. 6 at 3.) Indeed, 27 any digital device with a camera would allow one to participate in a Zoom video 28 conference.

1 because the government bears the burden to show why a continuance is warranted, the 2 government was required to sort out the availability of the detective in Winnemucca before 3 it filed its motion in the Underlying Case.

4 The government also argues that proceeding by videoconference is undesirable, 5 and may involve technical issues. (Id. at 8, 10-11.) The Court reiterates that TGO 2020-6 05 was in place before the government initiated this case, and that it implemented 7 provisions of the CARES Act expressly intended to allow criminal proceedings, including 8 preliminary hearings, to occur by video or teleconference with the defendant's consent.
9 These provisions do not require the government's consent. Moreover, they were 10 expressly adopted in recognition that in-person hearings are no longer prudent given 11 COVID-19—and are temporary, implicitly because in-person hearings are preferable to 12 video or telephonic hearings. See TGO 2020-05. In addition, the statute governing 13 preliminary hearings is set up to protect the right of the defendant not to be held 14 indefinitely without probable cause. See 18 U.S.C. § 3060(d) (requiring the court release 15 the defendant if the defendant is not given a preliminary hearing within the prescribed 16 time period). In sum, the applicable burdens here all favor criminal defendants—and for 17 good reasons. The government would therefore have to show more than hearings held 18 by videoconference are undesirable to justify a continuance.

19 Finally, the government insists that it was not inevitable it would have to proceed 20 via preliminary hearings held over videoconference when it initiated this case. (ECF No.
21 5 at 12-13.) The Court finds this argument unreasonable. In addition to the explanation 22 already provided above, at the time the government initiated this case, the Court had 23 already issued four temporary general orders restricting court operations because of 24 COVID-19, the governor of Nevada had ordered nonessential businesses to close, and 25
26
27
28

1 ordered everyone to stay home.⁸ Under these circumstances, it was unlikely a functioning 2 grand jury would exist for some time. In fact, the government even argued a grand jury 3 would not sit before May 4, 2020 in its motion in the Underlying Case. See Underlying 4 Case, ECF No. 19 at 3-4, 7-8. Thus, the government should have known it would have to 5 proceed with preliminary hearings remotely at the time it initiated this case, unless it could 6 obtain a continuance.

7 In closing, the parties agree Defendants' preliminary hearings should have been 8 held on April 16, 2020. (ECF Nos. 1 at 15, 5 at 3.) They were not. And the Court is vacating 9 Judge Baldwin's Order granting continuances of these hearings as clearly erroneous. The 10 governing statute therefore leaves the Court no discretion. Elms and Klyn must be 11 released immediately. See 18 U.S.C. § 3060(d).

12 IV. CONCLUSION

13 The Court notes that the parties made several arguments and cited to several 14 cases not discussed above. The Court has reviewed these arguments and cases and 15 determines that they do not warrant discussion as they do not affect the outcome of the 16 issues before the Court.

17 It is therefore ordered that George Wyatt Elms' objection/appeal (ECF No. 1) is 18 sustained.

19 It is further ordered that Judge Baldwin's Order is vacated.

20 It is further ordered this case is remanded to Judge Baldwin to immediately release 21 Elms and Klyn from custody under 18 U.S.C. § 3060(d).

22 It is further ordered that Travis Klyn's motion for joinder (ECF No. 2) is granted.
